Our Mission

The Greene County Agricultural Society, Inc. is responsible for organizing the annual Youth Fair and furthering agricultural education within the community.

What We Do

Held for four days each July, the Greene County Youth Fair is one of the last free fairs in New York. The fair honors the accomplishments of local youth who will keep our agricultural legacy alive for years to come.

We are part of the New York State Association of Agricultural Fairs, whose goal is to promote agriculture, horticulture and domestic arts. All members of the Greene County Agricultural Society are volunteers, and no one receives a paycheck.

The Greene County Agricultural Society meets on the fourth Tuesday of each month at 7 p.m. Meetings are open to the public.

Why Ag Education?

Agriculture is one of New York State's top industries. In fact, New York's farm economy generates more than $4 billion each year.

Covid 19 has gotten people thinking about where their food comes from. Interest in locally produced products has never been stronger. Backyard agriculture is making a comeback and the local food movement is stronger than ever. The public is planting gardens, raising livestock, and learning how to provide for themselves. We have a unique opportunity to continue to educate these people and to share our experiences and knowledge with them.

As our population continues to shift to a more urban and technology-based demographic, it is the responsibility of Agricultural Societies to educate the public on the importance of food production and its future.

Many families come to the fair for the music, fireworks and, of course, the food, and leave with a newfound knowledge of agriculture. Fairs and livestock shows are the original flagship for agriculture promotion in our society, and events like the Greene County Youth Fair help the children of today become the experts of tomorrow.

Fair kids go on to become not only farmers, but pursue careers in veterinary medicine, engineering, education, public service and many other agricultural careers. Equally as important, because agriculture is one of our state's top industries, young adults have the opportunity to pursue these types of careers without being forced to leave New York State. We are also seeing young adults return and volunteer on the board.

History of the Greene County Youth Fair

Alfred Partridge, leader of the Ashland Blue Ribbon 4-H Club, organized a 4-H Club Fair at the Sutton Hollow School in Ashland in 1949 to give his club members an opportunity to display their projects before family, friends and the community. From this small beginning, the youth fair has developed into the showcase it is today.

Alfred's club held its second fair in 1950 at the Sutton Hollow School. The next year, the fair was in Jewett and other 4-H Club members in the area joined in.

From 1952-1956, the 4-H Club Fair, as it was then known, was held at the VFW Hall on Route 23 near Windham.

In 1954 the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets recognized the fair as an agricultural fair and donated $5,000 annually to be given in premium money to the exhibitors. Another $500 was appropriated by the Greene County Board of Supervisors. By this time, the fair was officially called the Greene County Youth Fair and open to all youth who lived or attended school in Greene County.

By 1957 the fair had expanded to two dairy tents, a poultry and rabbit tent, and a sheep and goat tent. A new home was found at the Durham Central School, currently the Durham Elementary School, on Route 145. In addition to the tent space outside, there was ample space in the school for food and clothing exhibits, vegetables, flowers, entomology, arts and crafts.

During the late 1960s, a trade tent was added by the local merchants, as was a horse show, and the fair became a three-day event.

The Greene County Youth Fair stayed at the Durham School for 38 years, with the exception of 1973 when, due to alterations at the school, the fair was held at the Durham Town Building on Route 81.

In the fall of 1995 a committee was formed to find a new home for the fair, which by that time was in its 41st year. The Town of Cairo was more than willing to offer the use of Angelo Canna Town Park as a location centrally located in the county, and a new chapter in the fair's history began.

The fair was extended to a four-day event in 2001 and that same year Senator John Bonacic helped obtain a grant for a new public address system at the fair.

In 2002 the youth fair had a new attraction. An agricultural tent, bustling with activities to educate and entertain visitors of all ages. Part of the tent was filled with youth displays and agriculture, as well as forestry and conservation displays for adults.

In 2003 the Greene County Agricultural Society was incorporated for the purpose of running the fair.

We were not able have an in person fair in 2020 due to Covid 19. The board decided to go digital and provided an outlet for youth to showcase their projects without actually standing in front of a judge. We had a tremendous response as over 100 youth showcased their exhibits.

It is impossible to know how many young people have been involved in exhibiting and participating in the Greene County Youth Fair over the years. There are statistics indicating more than 2,000 exhibitors over the years.

So, Alfred Partridge's dream of a youth fair dedicated to the talents and interests of all of the youth of Greene County has come true. He worked many years for this project, but he would be the first to acknowledge all of the willing people who worked side-by-side with him. The list is endless.

Today, the fair attracts more than 10,000 people and is one of the only fairs in New York State to offer free admission and entertainment. The Greene County Youth Fair remains a celebration of the talents of local youth, enabling them to strive for higher goals and receive support from family, friends and their community.

Today's Greene County Youth Fair

A priority of the Greene County Agricultural Society has been and always will be to keep admission to the Greene County Youth Fair free for all ages.

Today's Youth Fair offers a wide variety of entertainment, attractions, music, rides, food, vendors, fireworks, fire department and police display, a talent show, classic car show, educational displays and so much more. Of course, the focus of the fair will always be agriculture, but as society — and kid's interests — change, we need to get creative about how we attract them to the fair and ultimately expose them to agriculture.

The 2025 fair, scheduled for July 24-27th at Cairo's Angelo Canna Town Park, will offer a wide variety of entertainment and educational exhibits, including animal demonstrations, singing and dancing groups, exotic animals, a woodsman competition and more. We have a full slate of entertainment ranging from crowd favorite Buffalo Barfield to new acts including a dog water jumping competition. We continue to build on the tradition of great entertainment and have added a variety of new entertainment this year. By expanding our entertainment, we hope to expose more of the public to our youth and the great projects they are doing for our communities. We are welcoming new acts and educational displays to really bring in more people to experience what Greene County has to offer.

This year we will be welcoming back a lumberjack skills competition that has become an annual part of the fair. We have added additional opportunities for livestock and will now offer an alpaca show as well as a cavy show and are expanding the swine show. We are also adding opportunities for Greene County farmers to reach the public about their products and showcase them.

In 2021 no one really knew what to expect after not having the fair in 2020. We downsized, adjusted and made the best fair that we could. In our opinion it was one of the best fairs we have ever put on. By downsizing it allowed us to focus on what we feel are the most important reasons why we put on the fair. We were able to enthusiastically support the youth and put the focus on all their projects and hard work. The trade tent was able to showcase local businesses that really needed a pick me up after Covid hit. By really boiling it down to the most important parts of the fair we were able to provide a more intimate setting where our kids were allowed to thrive.

We truly believe that in 2024 the fair returned to pre pandemic levels. The crowds were amazing every day. On Friday we ran out of parking spots. After Thursdays well attended opening day, vendors were having to go out and buy more supplies as demand far surpassed their expectations. It was a great fair that we will continue to build upon.

In 2024 the county also gave us another amazing gift. A storage building to store all our supplies in right there at the park in Cairo! No longer will supplies be stored at farms and facilities across the county. We will be able to have one central storage facility that will help make the fair run so much better. We can't thank the county enough for this generous contribution as well as securing a great future for us in Cairo.

We are expanding our means of fundraising. We will be having 2 Brooks BBQ fundraisers in Greenville. We are bringing back our butchered hog raffle and will be having our calf raffle again. We are canvassing the county for donations. We thank you for all your support as well.

The Future of the Greene County Youth Fair

It has been said, quite simply, "If you ate today, thank a farmer."

Unquestionably, the agricultural industry has changed enormously from the time our nation was founded. Technology, population shifts, nutritional awareness and even social change such as the industrial revolution have played an enormous role in how food is produced today. And it will continue to change.

By 2050 — less than 30 short years away — the agricultural sector is going to face enormous challenges to feed the 9.6 billion people that the United Nations predicts will inhabit the planet. Feeding these many people will require a food production increase of 70 percent. Who will be the farmers, scientists and agribusiness leaders working to ensure the world is fed three decades from now? The youth of today.

Greene county has lost numerous dairy farms in the last few years and as of right now there are only 4 farms in the county shipping milk. There is a huge disconnect between the general public and farmers. Fewer people know where their food comes from and how it got to the supermarket shelves. The Greene County Youth Fair helps to open educational lines of communication so fair goers can get a sense of how agriculture plays a vital role in the local economy. Currently the average age of a farmer in Greene County is 55 years old. This means that organizations like the Greene County Agricultural Society need to continue its mission to educate and encourage local children and teens to be involved in agriculture. We are fortunate to have locally involved partners in this mission, such as 4-H and FFA, but we must constantly continue to find new, creative and unique ways to attract youth and families – and generate funds to do so. We are proud to say that many of our former exhibitors have continued to pursue agricultural careers. Many of our former exhibitors have gone on to earn degrees from Cornell and SUNY Cobleskill. We must continue to provide this fair for the youth of Greene County. Often these exhibitors return to our communities and use their skills to further the benefit of their communities.

As the most recent census showed, we are losing farms at an alarming rate. We need to foster and grow the connection these youth have to the land and the animals. We need to support them and show them that farming is a viable option for their futures. We are exploring new partnerships with new FFA chapters in the county as well as the agriculture BOCES program to provide a place for our youth to showcase their accomplishments. We are working closely with other organizations in the county like Farm Bureau to provide support for these youth, so it is easier for them to exhibit their projects. Agriculture is a vital part of our communities that we need to continue to support, and we appreciate everything the county is doing to support us and our cause.

Going forward, the Agricultural Society recognizes that one of the keys to generating new ideas is to encourage participation from new people. Over the last 5 years a major focus of our organization has been to recruit younger members to our board. Usually these are individuals that had previously exhibited at the fair and want to see the fair continue. Our meetings are open to the public and we welcome new members.
